

Kymberly Harris

"I've worked with Kymberly as my Acting Coach on my roles in several television projects and in diverse genres. She's a person of integrity and passion for story, who is knowledgeable about the craft of creating character in conjunction with the writer's vision. She brings positive energy to any room she's in, as well as a safe environment to both express my creativity and guide efficient preparation."

High Maintenance, Severance

Kymberly Harris is an actor's director.

Her extensive experience as an acting coach to working actors of all ages has led actors to seek her out to direct them towards their best performances in film, television, and theatre projects. Kymberly Harris has developed her own technique in working with actors.

In the following workshops, actors will be exposed to this technique and taught how to use it to their highest results.

scene study

Students will learn and practice a specific technique of script analysis, and then will work on scenes from Television, Films, and Theatre. This workshop helps actors to personalize their material and empowers actors to find new freedom in performance as well as more success in their auditions and performance.

animal workshops

Animal work is the best kept secret of great performances. Actors will learn and practice animal work, discovering new behavior, new freedom, and expanding range.

workshop into performance

Actors will work on a play, which will culminate into a professional performance.

on camera acting

Actors will develop their on camera acting skills through a new technique that will strengthen understanding of character, and audition and performance.
